West Sac, Yolo County mend fences over seat on sewer board

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A squabble between the City of West Sacramento and the County of Yolo over how to share representation on the regional sewer board may be ending.

"As of last Wednesday the 8th, both the regional sanitation board and the City of West Sacramento endorsed a plan that gives West Sacramento a full, permanent seat," said County Supervisor Mike McGowan, a West Sacramento resident. "And all parties have agreed to allow a second seat for Yolo County, subject to a 'sunset clause' that says when the construction project is complete, the seat will expire. We have further agreed not to have Yolo County vote on any matters regarding rates or changes in the board of governance."

Yolo County will therefore have a "say" on the sanitation district based in Sacramento for as long as the district is constructing its "Natomas Interceptor" pipeline across the river, through West Sacramento, and through southern Yolo County.

"The intention is to be there to protect whatever interests the county has in the pipeline," added McGowan.

Some officials from Yolo County had voiced unusually blunt criticism of their West Sacramento counterparts after previous state legislation was drafted that granted West Sacramento a seat on the sanitation board, but excluded Yolo County. City officials felt that was appropriate – and refused to share the seat with Yolo – because West Sacramento was the only entity in Yolo County planning to hook up to the Sacramento district and to pay sewage fees and rates within it. County supervisors Dave Rosenberg, Lynnell Pollock and Tom Stallard disagreed, voting against endorsing this legislation, and championing the county's interest in "sharing" the new seat created by West Sacramento's addition to the sanitation district. McGowan and fellow supervisor Lois Wolk sided with West Sacramento's point of view.

The new compromise allows Yolo County to protect its interests as the pipeline is constructed, but gives it little other representation. At the same time, also protects West Sacramento's desire for a full seat of its own.

"At the beginning," said McGowan, "I never really felt a strong need for the county to protect its interests in the district. But the more I was told by the Sacramento side that we didn't need a seat, the more I wanted them to respect our interests. I think the county got what it deserves, and West Sacramento got what hopefully could be a second vote."

ROAR roars across the river

The third annual River Otter Amphibious Race, sponsored jointly by the chambers of commerce on both sides of the river, returned Saturday.

About a dozen 'kinetic sculpture' entries launched at Crocker Park in Sacramento to begin a land/water journey across the river and through West Sacramento's riverfront.

Fighting for the somewhat-coveted 'Mayor's Cup,' Sacramento's 'Spirit of Sacramento III' emerged victorious, defeating its West Sacramento rivals.

'The course was extended this year,' said Art Schroeder of the city manager's office of West Sacramento. 'As soon as they came up the Broderick boat ramp, they turned right and there was a kind of challenging new course including a mud pit. I think this was the best ROAR yet due to the enthusiasm and competition. There's room for a lot more entries and ideas, though.'

Schroeder said he expected the event to return next year.

This year's festivities also involved a health and safety fair on West Sacramento's riverfront, and 'cigarette' speedboat racing Saturday and Sunday on the Sacramento River.

Yolo County Fair opens today, & it's still free

The Yolo County Fair opens tonight at 6 p.m. in Woodland, and continues through Sunday. Both admission and entertainment are free.

Three stages of entertainment will be available this year, including the original Picnic Area Stage in Rotary Park, a River City Bank stage near Ludy's BB!, and the South Beer Garden Stage near the arena. A wide variety of entertainment is planned.

The City of West Sacramento will have an exhibit at the fair that includes some of the winning photos in the city's annual photo contest.

D.A.'s office sues to fix problems at trailer park

The Yolo County district attorney's office has announced that it has filed a lawsuit against the owners of Green Acres Mobile Home Park on F St. – which was cited for health and maintenance issues last month.

The lawsuit seeks the appointment of a guardian "to deal with immediate hazards to life and health, including raw sewage and unsafe gas and electric hook-ups, and to manage the property on a more permanent basis."

The D.A.'s office said park management had "failed to take remedial action until this court action was filed, leaving the park residents, which include elderly mentally ill, and numerous children, in appalling living conditions."

Deputy District Attorney Shirley Dunnells, who is assigned to the West Sacramento community, has contacted county agencies such as Child Protective Services and Socials Services and Employment to let them know that residents could be made homeless by unlivable conditions at the park. The city's code enforcement department and police sergeant Allen Conwell are also involved in exploring ways to help residents move or rehabilitate their units.

Redistricting plan floats through Yolo

New plan will unite West Sacramento within one supervisor's district

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

The Yolo County supervisors have drawn new boundaries for their supervisorial districts – and they did so with very little conflict. All of West Sacramento will fit into one district according to the map that will be in place for next year's election cycle.

Clarksburg and most of West Sacramento are currently served by one district (currently Michael McGowan's First District), while the northern edge of the city is now part of a separate district (currently served by Tom Stallard) that stretches to Woodland. The new plan will leave Clarksburg and all of West Sacramento in the First District.

"We're pretty much all in accord," said McGowan of the supervisors' plan. "Pretty much what's happening with the other districts is that there will be two supervisors in Woodland, and two from Davis. (Davis resident) Dave Rosenburg's district used to go into Woodland, but it won't anymore."

The county's large, sparsely-populated western areas will be represented by the supervisor's district which includes the western edge of Woodland, and is currently manned by Lynnell Pollock.

West Sacramento's supervisorial district will include a piece of the Yolo Bypass between West Sacramento and Davis.

"I felt I needed at least a significant presence in the bypass, so that various state agencies and federal agencies will recognize that the supervisor for District 1 has some interests in the bypass. That has not been the case in the past."

The redistricting effort came after a number of public hearings, and involved a citizen's committee that included West Sacramento's Ron Morazzini, said McGowan.

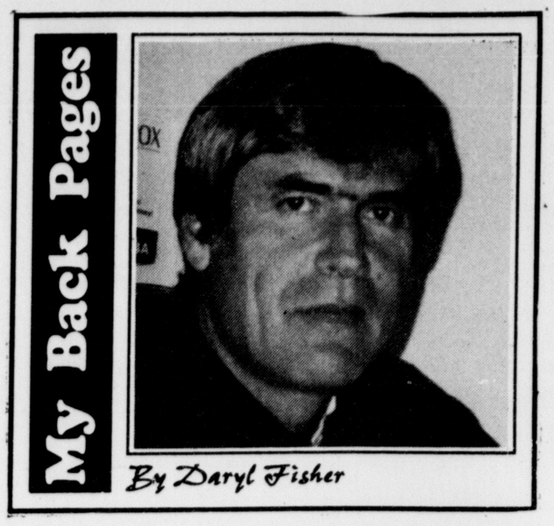

The effort is an attempt to balance political interests with population, and create a fair way to represent all Yolo County residents using five districts.

"What's going to be very interesting is seeing what happens in the next ten years," said McGowan. "Right now, (West Sacramento's) population has grown to the point you need to

Recalling a long-ago day in the late summer of 1969

Editor's note: Daryl is taking the month of August off from column writing. Here is one of his favorites from the past, which first appeared in the News-Ledger in the late summer of 1994.

Today is the 25th anniversary of the day I was wounded in Vietnam. You never actually believe it's going to happen to you, and even as the force of the explosion lifted me off my feet and hurled me through the air, I refused to accept the fact that my turn had finally arrived. The initial flash of pain in my left side was excruciating, but by the time I had belly-flopped back to earth, it was nothing more than a dull ache.

Then, just when I had convinced myself that I wasn't dead and everything was probably going to be okay, my whole lower back went on fire, as if someone was branding me with a red hot metal poker. I reached around and desperately tried to pound out the flame. When I brought my hand back up in front of my eyes, the sight of my own bright red blood terrified me.

I struggled to my knees and like a dog chasing his own tail, I spun around and around, unsuccessfully trying to see how bad I had been hit.

Suddenly, out of nowhere, my squad leader hurled the full force of his massive shoulder into my chest, the way gung ho football players do to blocking dummies in practice. The solid blow flattened me and he screamed, "Stay down!"

The words were barely out of his mouth when another half-dozen or so rocket propelled grenades exploded into the nearby ground and filled the air with more flying dirt and shrapnel. Then the L-shaped ambush we had walked into began with deadly earnest. The heart-stopping sound of AK-47 automatic weapons fire seemed to be coming from every direction, followed shortly by the unfamiliar whistling sounds of larger enemy rockets which began raining down and violently shaking the earth I was clutching. My whole body shook and vibrated as my squad leader and I (I was carrying his radio at the time) burrowed deeper into the loose, wet soil and held our steel pots tightly to our heads. As I laid there next to him listening to the screams and pleas of other members of my 30-man aero-rifle platoon, a hundred thoughts races through my mind, but the only one I really remember is silently asking God not to let me die half-a-world away from home.

Last night, as I sat out in the calm and safety of my own backyard patio, I was surprised at how many details I could recall from that long ago day near a little Vietnamese village called Lai Khe. I remembered how it had poured all that morning and how thick and oxygen-starved the air seemed; how the leather straps supporting my waterlogged backpack kept digging painfully into my shoulder blades no matter how often I reached back and tried to adjust them; how concerned our Audie Murphy look-alike ground combat officer seemed just before we made contact and how he kept playing around in a leg pocket of his faded green and black jungle fatigues with an old battered compass he always carried with him; how everyone seemed to be straining their ears more than usual for a clue to our fate as we cautiously trudged through the dense, chest-high elephant grass; how it took four side-by-side armored personnel carriers with huge M-50 machine guns blazing away to finally end our stalemated struggle; how one of those machine guns had been manned by a burly, unshaven GI with a sadistic grin on his face and a cigar dangling from his lips; and how when it was finally over, how all the smells of that day's fighting and dying were still locked inside my nostrils when I fully awoke from surgery in a place called Long Binh the next afternoon.

"You want to play the winner?" asked my oldest son and he and one of his brothers suddenly started up a table tennis match right next to me on the patio.

"Not right now," I answered, still lost in my memories but grateful for the company.

As I watched them begin leisurely bouncing a yellow ping-pong ball back and forth, I reluctantly reminded myself of history's saddest lesson, that there has always been another stupid war for young men to go off and die in, and I couldn't help but wonder what kind of craziness awaits their generation. Would they, like my grandfather, be needed in a war that was supposedly going to end all wars; or would they, like my father, have to help civilized people everywhere get rid of another idiot like Adolph Hitler; or would they, like me, somehow find themselves with a rifle in their hand humping around in a distant jungle without a clue about why they had been sent there?

"So, Dad, you going to play the winner or not?" asked my oldest son, sensing that he was just about to finish slaughtering his younger brother.

"Okay, I'll play the lucky winner," I said to my smiling son, fully aware of the fact that for exactly 25 years today, that person has been me.

SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa

All over the Bay Area, fans are catching a virus called "baseball fever." The San Francisco Giants continue their winning ways after finishing a successful 4-2 road through Cincinnati and Chicago. The Giants (66-52) have won 14 games in the last 17 contests. The Giants are winning with pitching but how about pitcher Livan Hernandez.

The ex-third baseman has eight consecutive hits and has hit safely 12 out the last 13 appearances at the plate. The National League record for consecutive hits by any player is held by a second baseman. In 1992 Bip Roberts had 10 hits in a row! The Giants return to Pac Bell Park (38-21) with the best home record in the National League. This week the Giants will entertain the Florida Marlins starting on Tuesday and the Atlanta Braves will close out the weekend with a three game set.

The Oakland A's (68-50) are on fire! The A's swept the three game series over mighty New York Yankees this weekend to improve their winning streak to 11 games. The sweep also put the A's on top in the American League race for the wild card spot. On Sunday, before a sell-out crowd of 47,725, the A's MVP, Jason Giambi, hit a solo blast in the bottom of the ninth into the right field seats to complete the sweep and stun the three time defending champions.

The winning streak has extended the A's wild card lead over the Red Sox and Indians by two games. The A's are reporting record-breaking numbers last week with more that 238,000 people paid to watch the A's six-game home stand against the Red Sox and Yankees. The average, 39,667, is the highest per-game attendance in Oakland's 33-year Coliseum history. Remember that rumors are flying around in Oakland that the A's are going to be sold! For more information look up on the Internet website (www.oaklandfans.com). The A's head up to Canada this week to play Toronto and then it's on to Chicago for a weekend series against the White Sox.

The Sacramento Monarchs are gearing up for the upcoming WNBA playoffs. The Monarchs (19-12) will play Los Angeles Sparks (27-3), the No. 1 seed in the West. The Sparks had won 18 consecutive games until last night when Utah beat them 80-78 with a last second shot.

The 49ers and Raiders are preparing for their bay area encounter next Sunday, August 19th (4 p.m. â_" ch.10 & 31) at 3Com Park. The Niners lost their pre-season opener 25-24 in San Diego while the Raiders won their second pre-season game 10-7 over the Phoenix Cardinals. Jerry Rice and Charlie Garner return to familiar stomping grounds in San Francisco but will probably see limited action. The 49ers will continue with their two-day practices in Stockton until break camp on Saturday and return to their Santa Clara training camp.

The River Cats are finally coming home this week after a long road trip but they are 3 ½ games up on the rest of the pack in the Southern Division. The Gatos will host New Orleans starting on Tuesday, August 14th with Oklahoma coming in over the weekend during their 12 game home-stand.

See ya next week!.

Oak crashes near church

From Chris White
Community Luth. Church

Just a few hours after the annual flea market at Community Lutheran Church, one of the old valley oaks on the property fell down, crushing the church's playground. Several people attending a meeting at the church property heard the tree fall down about 8:30 p.m.

"I thought it was a car crash in the Chevron parking lot," said one witness. The witnesses turned to see the tree breaking at ground level, and slowly falling to smash the playground structure and fence. The tree narrowly missed the church's storage shed and completely missed the Chevron's car wash.

Valley oaks are a protected species in California. Once plentiful in the Sacramento area, many were removed to make way for development or for their wood. The trees on the church property are one of the last stand of old-growth trees in the area. As part of the SPARK Neighborhood Development Project, the church has been seeking grant money to help preserve the trees and create an outdoor classroom to educate residents about native plants.

"Losing this tree was a blow to our grove," said Pastor Marge Beach. "We do feel very fortunate that it didn't fall during our flea market or when there were children on the playground."

The playground structure was built from telephone poles in the 1970s. The weight of the tree's trunk and branches snapped the thick poles in some places, and drove them deeper into the ground in other spots. The entire structure will be declared a loss. The church's insurance company is currently studying the reason's for the tree's fall. When the investigation is complete, the tree will be removed.

"We're looking forward to rebuilding the playground," added Pastor Beach. "Just in the last few weeks, we've received some donations specific to updating the play structures. We're looking forward to creating a new place for West Sacramento children to play as soon as possible."

Buying a home? Or selling? Do you have questions?

■ How do I buy another home and sell mine?
■ What is my home worth? How much do I get?
■ Do I sell my home first? Do I rent?
■ Where do I start? Who can help?

You can start by calling JOHN KANE, 373-5300.

He has the answers to your questions, and can tailor-make a "Real Estate Plan" that makes sense for you. He has helped many West Sacramento families -- and his experience does make a difference.

(NAPS)—Dealing with drains doesn't have to be a disaster. With a little common sense and preventive maintenance you can take steps to prevent plugged pipes. These tips will keep things flowing smoothly:

Clearing Out Clogs

Drains can narrow over time due to the accumulation of soap and hair. Drain maintenance products with organic enzymes can help break down the buildup and keep drains running freely.

When faced with a stubborn clog or slow drain in the bathroom or kitchen, start with low-tech approaches and gradually move up to bring in the "heavy hitters"—chemical drain cleaners.

• The good old-fashioned bathroom plunger may help clear some clogs. To use a plunger correctly:

1. Block any overflow holes or other openings with a wet rag.
2. Apply a thick layer of petroleum jelly to the rim of the plunger to create a tight seal and greater suction.
3. Powerfully pump the plunger up and down at least 15-20 times, then stop to test whether water is drawing. If the drain is still slow, repeat the plunging again. When the clog is cleared, flush hot water through the drain for several minutes to clear out any remaining particles.

• For more stubborn clogs, try a commercially available product, such as Zep 10 Minute Hair Clog Remover. The product, available exclusively at The Home Depot, has a fast-acting formula strong enough to dissolve most hair clogs in the bathroom sink, shower or tub, but will not damage metal, plastic or brass plumbing or septic tanks.

• Greasy clogs in the kitchen call for a more powerful drain cleaner. Zep's Heavy Duty Drain Opener is a thick liquid formula that pours straight through standing water and goes directly to the clog, breaking it up fast.

Remember, too, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. To protect bathroom pipes, invest a couple of dollars in a rubber or plastic hair catcher.

In the kitchen, don't pour greasy liquids into your kitchen sink or disposer. Grease solidifies as it cools and this clogs your pipes. Also, never empty coffee grounds in the disposer. Finally, once a week, pour an organic citrus cleaner or drain and disposer treatment down the drain to melt away any fat or grease that may have accumulated. For those with septic systems, using a specially-formulated septic treatment product on a regular basis can reduce septic system back-up.

Following these simple tips will help the water in your drains go with the flow.

Do restaurant owners really believe nobody eats on Saturday for lunch?

For years, Saturday has been my household cleaning and shopping day, usually with a friend. The idea of sitting down to a leisurely lunch in a relaxing atmosphere has always been my wish. Last Saturday, I stopped at Vince's Italian Restaurant, Caffe Vienna and the Westside Pub & Grill – all closed for lunch and open at 4 p.m. for dinner.

Luckily, my friend and I were directed to A's Chinese Food to Go on Jefferson Blvd. by a woman in the Cheaper Cigarette Store on Merkley. "A's" has tables inside, so we decided to have our lunch there. We were greeted by a very polite and lovely young lady who was busy with a number of customers. The "reader board" on the wall behind the food counter has the menu on it and the prices, so when the check comes there's no shock. All the prices were extremely reasonable, especially the combination plates.I had fried rice, chow mein, sweet & sour pork and lemon chicken all for $4.99, and it was delicious. I added a pot sticker and my friend had one of their egg rolls. These were served in a "to go" carton with a napkin and plastic fork. How convenient – the portions were so huge, it was easy to take the leftovers home.

This is one Chinese restaurant where it is so clean, you could quite literally "eat off the floor." What an unexpected surprise! It was truly a great meal. A's Chinese Food to Go (or stay!) is at 829 Jefferson Blvd., right next to Gorman's Hallmark store. For take-out orders, call 375-1499.

I just got the news that the Westside Pub & Grill will be serving dinners on the weekends starting September 8. Call for reservations now, as it's sure to be crowded. 372-8897.

Last month, I took a trip to Reno to see the many changes that have occurred in the past few years. What I found was one of the finest family resorts in Verdi, about 12 miles before Reno. Of course, I'm talking about the Boomtown Hotel Casino and R.V. Park. They sure have come a long way from Bill & Effie's hamburger stand that catered primarily to truckers coming over the Donner Pass on the old Highway 40. Verdi is an old mining town set in the Nevada Mountains, and there are still many operating mines in the area. Anyone who stays at the Boomtown Resort has also "Struck Gold"; a more perfect family vacation spot would be hard to find. Adults can gamble, play golf, see a free show, or swim in one of two pools, or go to the only 3-D theater in Nevada.

In the spirit of a full-fledged resort, Boomtown Hotel offers 318 rooms that have been totally renovated down to coordinated toilet paper. They also offer 35,000 square feet of fun center for the children and over 200 video and arcade games, a merry-go-round, Ferris wheel and a bucking bronco ride. They haven't forgotten all you R.V.-ers, either: they have over 203 spaces with full hookups, a gas station and minimart.

On to Reno: what in the world have they done to Virginia Street?

Where did all those tacky pawn shops, souvenir shops and fast food markets come from? They seem to have a lack of planning vision in Reno. . . destroying the Mapes Hotel and allowing those trashy shops to locate on the fabulous and famous Virginia Street where hangs the banner "Biggest Little City in the World" ain't no more. Thank God for the Sundowner, Sands Regency, Silver Legacy, El Dorado and Circus Circus. All located before the sign, they still welcome all.

(NAPS)—Even with the increasing number of diet programs available, health experts continue to recommend balanced nutrition and regular exercise as the keys to achieving and maintaining weight loss.

According to research conducted at Brandeis University, the proper "balance" extends to the types of fat in the diet. For example, researchers have improved the ratio of HDL (good) to LDL (bad) cholesterol by using a balanced blend of fats as a significant part of a varied diet. This blend of natural vegetable oils was used to develop Smart Balance Buttery Spreads, new non-hydrogenated shortening and other foods.

Registered dietitian Jamie Pope, M.S., R.D., L.D.N. has developed a food plan which helps people maintain the proper fat balance, while following the American Heart Association (AHA) 1 Diet. The Smart Balance Food Plan offers seven days of menu suggestions and recipes featuring Smart Balance products, such as 67% Buttery Spread.

These products are designed to help provide approximately equal proportions of the three principal fatty acids. The buttery spread can be used for cooking, baking and frying, as well as a table spread, to balance fat intake. That benefit is enhanced by avoiding trans fatty acids (often used in margarines) and the dietary cholesterol in butter.

"Smart Balance products are a delicious and beneficial part of an overall healthful and varied diet," says Pope.

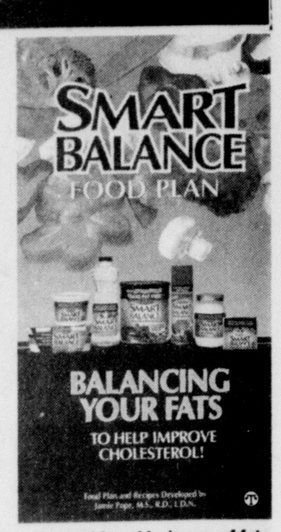

As an example, here's the menu for Day 5 of the food plan:

• Breakfast—½ grapefruit; 1 slice Banana Bread with 2 tsp. buttery spread; 1 cup lowfat yogurt; coffee or tea.

• Lunch—Turkey sandwich with reduced-fat cheese and mayonnaise, tomato slices and lettuce on whole grain roll or bread; 1 oz. pretzels or reduced-fat chips; fruit of choice; no-calorie beverage.

• Dinner—1 serving Baked Fish with Herb Sauce (recipe follows); 1 cup brown or wild rice; 1 cup summer squash with onions sautéed in Smart Balance Buttery Spread; 1 serving Nutty Fruit Crisp with ½ cup frozen yogurt; no-calorie beverage.

• Snack—1 cup baby carrots or celery sticks; 2 Tbsp. reduced-fat salad dressing for dipping.

A nutritional balance of fats in the diet and exercise is considered a sound way to maintain a healthy cholesterol ratio.

Baked Fish with Herb Sauce

¼ cup Smart Balance 67% Buttery Spread
4 tsp. lemon juice
½ tsp. dried dill weed or dried basil, rosemary or oregano, crushed
¼ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. black pepper
1 pound flounder, salmon, whitefish or other fish fillets

1. In a small saucepan, melt spread with lemon juice, dried herb, salt and pepper. Set aside.
2. Lightly coat a shallow baking pan with additional spread. Arrange fillets in a single layer, tucking under any thin edges.
3. Brush fillets with herb sauce.
4. Bake, uncovered, at 450° for 4-6 minutes per ½ inch thickness. If broiling, broil 4 to 6 inches from heat.

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial:

Checking the odometer

The odometer flips over again:

This issue marks the end of the News-Ledger's 37th year of service to the West Sacramento area since the late Julius Feher started the paper with Michael Garten back in the LBJ era (original subscription price was $1 per year!).

That's 1,924 consecutive Wednesdays.

One remarkable thing is that even though a couple of people have held the title of "editor" here in a sort of honorary fashion, you can still count the total number of editors over those 37 years on one hand. And -- unusual in the newspaper business -- ownership hasn't changed hands. Mr. Feher died a little over a decade ago after an extremely distinguished career that included top-knotch community journalism for several newspapers over several decades in West Sacramento. But Mr. Garten remains the News-Ledger's sole proprietor.

One thing everybody who brings you has in common is the belief that there is a value in having a locally owned community newspaper. Judging by your 37 years of support, evidently you do, too.

And speaking of milestones, you may have noticed that Lt. Ray Hensley of the West Sacramento Police Dept. is "getting short." A retirement party for Ray is scheduled for Saturday.

The News-Ledger will miss him over there and wishes him well. He's always been honest and reliable -- even if he still hasn't returned our call from last week.

Local women complete cancer walk

On July 27th, 28th and 29th, four women from West Sacramento completed their mission of walking 60 miles in the Avon 3-Day Breast Cancer Walk. The four collected $11,000 in donations, which added to the $6.5 million the event gathered from all participants.

The women who participated in the walk were Sally Lucas, Erin Snyder, Andrea Hart and Kelly Rochester, all of whom live in the Southport area. Each took time from their busy schedules and families to do their part in the efforts to fund those who work to find a cure that affects the lives of each and everyone of us. Here are their profiles:

Sally Lucas is married to husband John and is the mother of four, Justin, Joe, Kevin and daughter Lauren.

Erin Snyder works for the State of California and is married to husband Rob, a West Sacramento Fire Engineer. They have two children, Logan and Allyson.

Andrea Hart also works for the State of California and is married to husband Rick, owner of Sierra Hart Auto Center. They have two children, Travis and Austin.

Kelly Rochester is the vice president of All-Phase Security. She is engaged to Ken Garrett, CEO of All-Phase Security. They have two children, Kyle and Haley.

The women enjoyed the challenge and camaraderie of the walk. At the conclusion of each day they set up two-person sleeping tents, enjoyed well-deserved massages, great food, showers, entertainment and inspirational rallies supplied by the sponsors. These campsites were incredible. More than a thousand two-person tents lined the college campus football field along with portable showers, triage tents with medical personnel, mobile kitchens supplying hot cooked meals, with volunteer crews taking care of all the participants needs.

Kelly Rochester, Sally Lucas, Erin Snyder & Andrea Hart

The walk (which caused many blisters) started in the city of Santa Clara with participants walking an average of 20 miles each day. Campsites were set up in the cities of Belmont (Bay Meadows Race Track) and Pacifica (Skyline College). The walk afforded beautiful views of coastal mountains meeting the Pacific Ocean. The final day included walking through Golden Gate Park, the Presidio with the finish line ending at Marian Green Park. The Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco served as a backdrop as the walker were met with the cheers of thousands of supporters. The support personnel had made sure that the walkers were safe, well-hydrated, and had placed port-a-potties lining city street corners every two miles. San Jose police bike officers also donated their time, providing security and traffic control every mile of the way.

At 5 p.m. more than 3,000 women and some men walked through the cheering gauntlet of families and supporters and crossed the finish line. Sally, Erin, Andrea and Kelly were met by 21 family members who gave them each 23 roses and whom stood proud and in support of this worthwhile cause. A sea of tears was shed as participants and families embraced and congratulated those involved. With those tears was a mountain of hope for the cure of a disease which affects 1 in 8 women. More than 125,000 women are diagnosed with breast cancer each year and the disease takes more than 40,000 lives each year.

Thanks to these women, and many others like them, we are one step closer to prevention and treatment of a disease that affects the lives of all of us. One step closer to a cure or prevention for our mothers, daughters, aunts, nieces and wives, the people we love and whom gave us life. For that, Sally, Erin, Andrea and Kelly have our gratitude.

On behalf of Sally, Erin, Andrea and Kelly, I would like to thank those who though of them as they trudged along and those who supported the cause financially, a cure cannot be found without your money. Thanks!

As for the girls, self referred to as LOM's (Ladies of Miles), your sisterhood, commitment to humanity, and perseverance is awe-inspiring to those who watched in wonder. Thanks and Love.

Stem cell research just beginning

President Bush approves (limited) stem cell research with the apparent message that any further research must be funded by private funds, not taxes. Considering the potential for health improvement for the disabled, the results of this initial research should cause public to demand further action in this direction.

If somehow it seems politically incorrect to allocate further tax funding for what sounds like such a promising purpose, maybe those in charge will take a look at what it now costs us (money and non-money) to deal with the disabled, especially the most severely disabled. Look for savings in this part of the budget to offset stem cell research. Couple that with the quality of life improvements resulting from such research success. While this latter point is difficult to measure in monetary terms, it is often such non-monetary values that affect our lives most profoundly.

As we experience the results of the initial stem cell research, the public will demand that we keep the ball rolling, whether by taxes, tax breaks, federal grants, or who knows what?

Kids given photo ID kits

West Sacramento's Rotary Club worked with the Volunteers in Policing program on Saturday to provide free children's photo identification kits. The kits included a picture, vital statistics and fingerprints -- considered an important early recovery tool in the event of an abduction.

The kits were prepared as part of the festivities Saturday at River Walk in West Sacramento. Students from the West Sacramento Interact Club, sponsored by the Rotary, helped assemble the kits.

The children were placed in protective custody of Child Protective Services.

Aug. 8, 11 p.m.
Two shifts of officers responded to the report that facing houses of people were involved in a large fight involving a handgun and possibly a shotgun. Officers covered both homes, and ordered the residents of one home to come outside. A woman at the door responded that only she and her children were home, but when ordered to evacuate, six adults left the building. No weapons were found. The individuals were pat-searched, checked for warrants and released. A woman at the other home told police only she, her kids and her boyfriend were at home. They were ordered out, and one more adult was found in a bedroom. One was on searchable probation and a second was on parole. 21 grams of methamphetamine were located in the home. A man and woman were arrested, and the kids were placed with a neighbor at the mother's request.

An officer pulled a car over for speeding at Sacramento Ave. and Todhunter. The officer checked warrants for the woman driving it and for the man who had just previously been driving, and found that a restraining order was in effect preventing the man from contacting his brothers, who were in the vehicle. The man admitted being aware of the order. He had apparently been paroled to the residence of the brothers in error. He was given a notice to appear in court.

Aug. 9, 4:23 a.m.

She was arrested.

Aug. 12, 9:32 a.m.
On Rice Ave., police conducted a welfare check of a woman and learned that her 41-year old boyfriend had threatened to slash her car's tires and break its windows if she attempted to leave his residence. Out of fear, she did not leave.

Officers were dispatched to Somerset Dr. regarding a domestic dispute. A boyfriend and girlfriend had fought, with the man pulling the woman's hair and punching her in the face. The man had scratches on his testicles from the fight, but was determined to be the "primary aggressor," and was arrested.
